Vernissage

Opening of the art project in Oberlech

In her intervention in the public space at Schottenhof, Corinna C. Wrana draws lines in the landscape with daring precision. They are velvety dark cuts that enter into communication with the snowy surroundings. The resulting contrast between black lines and diffuse light reflection, in which the installation is located, produces a reduced graphic spatial drawing. A drawing that, in changing conditions, paints us a picture of the complex web of life in nature and the role of man in it.
